CADERNO DE QUESTÕES

1. Compreensão de texto escrito em língua inglesa

Referência real de padrão: Edital nº 02 – TRANSPETRO/PSP/TERRA/NÍVEL SUPERIOR-2023.2 (Cesgranrio), edição anterior deste mesmo concurso, para o mesmo cargo (Profissional Transpetro de Nível Superior – Júnior), cuja prova de Conhecimentos Gerais também contemplou Língua Inglesa; provas objetivas com resultado divulgado em 25/01/2024.

1. Read the text below.

"Data-driven decision making has become a core competency for companies operating in complex, highly regulated industries such as oil and gas logistics. Instead of relying solely on intuition or past experience, managers now expect dashboards and reports that translate raw data into clear, actionable insights. However, building a dashboard is not enough: if the underlying data is inconsistent or poorly governed, even the most elegant visualization will mislead decision-makers rather than help them."

According to the text, the main idea is that

- (A) dashboards are always reliable, regardless of the quality of the underlying data.
- (B) data-driven decision making requires both good dashboards and well-governed, consistent data to be truly useful.
- (C) managers no longer need dashboards to make decisions.
- (D) intuition is now considered more reliable than data analysis.
- (E) oil and gas companies do not rely on data for decision making.

2. Still considering the text about data-driven decision making, the word "mislead", as used in "even the most elegant visualization will mislead decision-makers", is closest in meaning to

- (A) guide correctly.
- (B) confuse or give a false impression.
- (C) strengthen.
- (D) simplify.
- (E) accelerate.

3. Considering the same text, it can be inferred that the author would most likely agree that

- (A) data governance is irrelevant to the quality of a dashboard.
- (B) good data quality is a precondition for dashboards to be genuinely useful.
- (C) visual design is the only factor that matters when building a dashboard.
- (D) experience-based decision making is always superior to data-based decision making.
- (E) regulated industries do not benefit from data-driven approaches.

4. Now read the second text.

"Business analysts who work with data are increasingly expected to combine technical skills with strong communication abilities. It is not enough to know how to query a database or build a model; analysts must also be able to explain their findings to executives who may have little technical background. This is why storytelling with data has become such a valuable skill: it bridges the gap between complex analysis and the practical decisions that leadership needs to make."

According to this text, business analysts are increasingly expected to

- (A) focus exclusively on technical database skills, ignoring communication.
- (B) combine technical skills with the ability to communicate findings clearly to non-technical executives.
- (C) avoid any interaction with company leadership.
- (D) replace executives in the decision-making process.
- (E) work only with databases that require no modeling skills.

5. In the sentence "it bridges the gap between complex analysis and the practical decisions that leadership needs to make", the verb "bridges" is used to mean that storytelling with data

- (B) connects or links complex analysis to practical business decisions.
- (C) eliminates the need for any analysis at all.
- (D) is unrelated to leadership decisions.
- (E) makes analysis more complex than it needs to be.

6. Based on both texts, it is correct to state that they share the common idea that

- (A) raw data alone, without any additional treatment or communication effort, is sufficient for good decision making.
- (B) translating data into clear, well-communicated insights is essential for it to support effective decision making.
- (C) technical skills are no longer relevant for data professionals.
- (D) dashboards should never be reviewed by non-technical staff.
- (E) companies in regulated industries should avoid using dashboards.

7. In the first text, the expression "actionable insights" refers to

- (A) raw, unprocessed data with no clear interpretation.
- (B) insights that are clear and specific enough to guide concrete decisions or actions.
- (C) insights that only technical staff can understand.
- (D) information that has no practical use for managers.
- (E) data that has been deliberately hidden from decision-makers.

8. Considering the second text, the phrase "little technical background" means that the executives mentioned

- (A) have extensive and advanced technical training.
- (B) have limited or minimal technical knowledge.
- (C) have no interest whatsoever in business results.
- (D) are themselves data analysts.
- (E) refuse to make decisions based on data.

9. Read the text below.

"Many public companies in Brazil have adopted mandatory diversity quotas in their hiring processes, reserving a percentage of vacancies for Black, indigenous, and quilombola candidates. Supporters argue that such policies help correct long-standing inequalities in access to well-paid jobs, while critics sometimes question how these policies should be implemented in practice. Regardless of the debate, companies that adopt these measures are usually required to set up specific verification procedures to confirm that candidates actually belong to the groups they claim to represent."

According to the text, the main purpose of diversity quotas adopted by some Brazilian public companies is to

- (A) because of.
 - (B) in spite of / independently of.
 - (C) in favor of.
 - (D) as a result of.
 - (E) in addition to.

 - (C) eliminate diversity quotas altogether.
 - (D) reduce the total number of reserved vacancies.
 - (E) replace the entire hiring process with an automated system.
- 13. The word "quotas", as used in the text, refers to
- (A) a fixed percentage or number of positions reserved for a specific group.

 - (C) a type of technical certification required for certain jobs.
 - (D) an informal agreement with no legal basis.
 - (E) a penalty applied to companies that hire too many employees.
- 14. According to the text, critics of diversity quotas mainly question
- (A) whether such policies should exist at all, without any further consideration.
 - (B) how these policies should be implemented in practice.
 - (C) the total number of employees a company should have.
 - (D) the salary levels offered by public companies.
 - (E) the need for companies to hire employees at all.
- 15. Considering the three texts as a whole, it is correct to state that

ANEXO — GUIA DE CONTEÚDO

Resumo rápido, com macetes e dicas, de cada tema cobrado neste banco (Banco de Questões 3 — Conhecimentos Básicos). Use como revisão de véspera — não substitui o estudo do conteúdo programático oficial do Anexo IV do edital.

1. Compreensão de texto escrito em língua inglesa

Estratégia: leia primeiro perguntas e alternativas para saber o que procurar (scanning), depois faça uma leitura geral do texto (skimming) para pegar a ideia central antes de caçar detalhes. "Vocabulary in context" quase nunca pede o significado de dicionário isolado — sempre olhe a frase inteira ao redor da palavra. Cuidado com "false friends" (cognatos falsos: "actually" = na verdade, não "atualmente"; "pretend" = fingir, não "pretender").

2. Itens gramaticais relevantes para a compreensão dos conteúdos semânticos

Voz passiva = "to be" + particípio (was/were/is/are + verbo no particípio). Condicionais: tipo 1 (real/provável: If + presente, will + verbo), tipo 2 (hipotética: If + passado, would + verbo), tipo 3 (passado irreal: If + had + particípio, would have + particípio). Present Perfect ("has/have + particípio") liga passado ao presente — muito usado com "for" (duração) e "since" (ponto de partida). Modais não variam: must, can, should, would + verbo no infinitivo sem "to".
